GEP Integration Level Assessment:
Course/Program Portfolio Workshops

The General Education Program (GEP) Assessment Plan requires that all instructors offering Interdisciplinary Studies (IS) designated courses during fall 2016 submit a Course Portfolio (based on Step 6 of the GEP revision process). In addition to the IS Course Portfolios, every program on campus must choose one of the majors they offer and submit a Program Portfolio for Communication in the Major (CM) and a Program Portfolio for Capstone in the Major (CAP) that includes assessment evidence demonstrating achievement of at least one learning outcome for each of the categories. These Course and Program Portfolios are then reviewed by Faculty Learning Communities.

If you are offering an IS course in the fall, then you are required to submit a Course Portfolio by February 1, 2017 that includes assessment data you collect in your fall IS classes. To facilitate this process, IS Course Portfolios will be submitted to a D2L course site dedicated to this Integration Level category. Program Portfolios for CM and CAP should also be submitted by February 1, 2017 to D2L sites dedicated to each of these categories. The Program Portfolios will also primarily include data from CM and CAP courses taught in the fall of 2016, although data from courses taught in the spring of 2016 may also be included if that data is available and the CM and/or CAP courses are not taught in the fall.

To provide assistance to IS course instructors and any instructors involved in teaching the CM and CAP courses that will be included in the Program Portfolios, a final GEP assessment workshop is scheduled for Friday, September 16 from noon-2 p.m. in LRC 310. This workshop is designed to assist Integration Level instructors align their course assignments/assessments and GEP category learning outcomes, develop criteria/rubrics for assessing student learning, craft a plan for reporting and reflecting on their assessment results, and submit their Course/Program Portfolio in D2L. To help us anticipate the number of participants at this course portfolio workshop, please register for this session:
