

South Denali Visitor Complex: Master Interpretive Plan

Public Information Gathering Session

Anchorage, Alaska
6:00 p.m., November 29, 2007

Agenda

Information gathered during this session will assist the planning team to identify resources and stories in the South Denali region, suggest facility and site developments that will benefit Alaska residents, and incorporate ideas and concerns into the final planning document.

Welcome and Introduction

Bill Kiger, Natural Resources Interpretive Manager, Alaska State Parks

Overview of the South Denali Interpretive Planning Process

Planning team: Schmeckle Reserve Interpreters

- Introduction to the interpretive planning team
- Overview of interpretation, master planning, and scope of work
- Description of the Planning Triangle and current status of project
- Overview of proposed visitor center site on Curry Ridge
- Overview of conceptual site developments

Discussion Session

Discussion of significant community and regional stories to be interpreted, effects of the South Denali Visitor Complex on local communities, development of the visitor complex to benefit residents, and identification of local resources.

If you have more information to share or if you have questions about this project, contact:

Schmeckle Reserve Interpreters University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point

Ron Zimmerman, Jim Buchholz, and Michael Gross

Phone: (715) 346-4992 Fax: (715) 295-8918

E-mails: rzimmerm@uwsp.edu, jbuchhol@uwsp.edu, and mgross@uwsp.edu

Website: www.uwsp.edu/schmeckle

Address: 2419 North Point Drive / Stevens Point, WI 54481