

A Community Health Research Forum: Sharing Resources in a Conversation Café

March 2, 2009
UW Stevens Point, Dreyfus University Center, Alumni Room

Sponsored by Health Extension/Community Health Connections
UW Institute for Clinical and Translational Research

Forum co-sponsors
UW-Stevens Point, School of Health Promotion and Human Development
UW ICTR Community-Academic Partnerships Core (ICTR-CAP)

Please come and join us for a day in which we are inviting researchers to share their research ideas, experiences and plans in an informal setting designed to spark conversations and potential future collaborations in community-based, translational health research.

Forum Objectives

- To showcase the scope and variety of translational and community-based research being conducted by Wisconsin investigators, especially those located in Northern and Northeastern Wisconsin.
- To showcase the scope and variety of projects funded by the ICTR pilot grant program.
- To provide opportunities for exchange of ideas about translational and community-based research, and to begin to explore possibilities for future translational and community-based research partnerships.
- To highlight research/program resources available at UW ICTR and School of Medicine and Public Health.

Target Audiences

- Investigators conducting translational and/or community-based health research in northern and northeastern Wisconsin.
- Young investigators from UW-Madison and Marshfield Clinic; in particular, 2008 ICTR pilot grant recipients.
- Health Extension Regional Research Councils members.
- Community organizations with potential interests in partnering with researchers on projects.
- UW ICTR leadership.
