

Students for Freethought

General Meeting Minutes from March 25, 2008

Ask a Freethinker double event:

We were unable to get a copy of 30 days. We discussed two alternative options to show next Tuesday, The Four Horseman and The Age of American Unreason, we have decided on the latter.

Panel discussion:

The panel discussion is optional, but if you are interested in participating, answer the questions on the D2L discussion board by Sunday night. If you have any suggestions, feel free to voice them, even if you aren't interested in participating. The tentative date is Tuesday, April 15th.

T-shirts:

The t-shirts will be ten dollars, it cost extra to print on both sides. They are available in small, medium, large, and extra large.

General organization news:

We have received some videos and brochures from Center For Inquiry. They will soon be available for borrowing in our office library.

Budget:

We can appeal the friendly amendment the budget committee passed about our travel expenses. But, if we decide not to, we will probably have $500 left from this semester that will carry over.

Freethought news:

Secular Student Alliance:

They have recently reprinted an interesting article. An atheist organization at the University of Southern Florida sparked controversy when they applied for a thousand plus dollars. The community made arguments that they asked for too much and that such an amoral organization is dangerous for our society. The budget eventually was passed, regardless.

The documentary, Expelled: No Intelligence Allowed, which accuses the sciences of disallowing religious people from scientific fields, recently had a private screening. P.Z. Meyers, his family, and Richard Dawkins were in attendance. P.Z. was interviewed on camera, under false pretenses, and was eventually expelled from the screening. Mmm, irony. Dawkins, clearly under their radar, was not expelled. The film debuts in theaters on April 18th. We are thinking of getting P.Z. to visit again, perhaps for a collaborative effort for Evolution Day with Professor Wild.
