News:

Freedom From Religion Foundation:

The speeches from all of their national conferences have been posted to their website. Also, there is a huge book sale on the website.

The Golden Compass:

Is a trilogy of fantasy novels written by an Atheist that will all eventually be adapted to films. The first of the films is going to be released relatively soon and there already have been religious protests against it. The last of the series entails the murder of God.

Presidential election:

The two candidates:

1. Courtney
2. Nick

The two candidates will be typing up short speeches on why they believe they are qualified, which will eventually be e-mailed to the distribution list. The election will be held via e-mail votes.

Desire2Learn Forum:

Our faculty advisor has put in a request.

T-shirt ideas:

We have sent out a few possible designs, but you can e-mail additional ideas should you have any. We are to select a design relatively soon and will get an estimate from a t-shirt printing company to determine approximate costs.

Events:

“Ask An Atheist”/Religion panel.

We are going to be working with some of the members of the Comparative Religions Club to try and set something up.

Speakers:

We want to get Annie Laurie Gaylor and a second speaker from the Center For Inquiry sometime next semester.
