BA/BS IN DRAMA

Stage managers, directors, playwrights, and scholars are as much a part of the theatre as actors and designers. The BA/BS degree track offers you an opportunity to explore your passion for theatre in areas other than those focused upon by our BFA degrees. The BA/BS is a great program for you if your interests include directing, theatre management, or teaching. With only 44 credits in theatre courses required, the BA/BS gives you the opportunity to add a second major or multiple minors. You can craft the education you want with the BA/BS in Drama. Admission to the program is by interview/application only.

Classes include:

- Directing
- Acting
- Playwriting
- Script Analysis
- Theatre History and Dramatic Literature
- Scenic, Lighting, Costume, and Makeup Design

Whatever your interests, there are many opportunities available for you at UWSP. The Department of Theatre & Dance mounts many full scale productions in our mainstage and studio theatres in the Noel Fine Arts Center. You will be immersed in hands-on work behind the scenes, putting your classroom skills to the test as you experiment with new theories of production, design, and performance.

Recent Graduates Include:

- Lydia Graboski-Bauer (2008) recently completed her MFA in the design program at Southern Methodist University
- Rebecca Hengstenberg (2007) is a professional director in New York City who has also worked with playwright Brian Dykstra
- Dan Klarer (2010) is a member of the Plimoth Players, an Elizabethan acting company in Plymouth, MA
- Jaime Nunn (2010) has begun graduate studies in Social Work at UW-Milwaukee

- Lauren Shimulunas (2010) is a graduate student in the MA program in English at the University of New Hampshire
- Amber Wuttke (2010) is a freelance designer in Chicago, currently working with Emerald City Theatre

In the BA/BS Drama program, you'll be mentored by exceptional faculty who have a wide range of professional and academic experience and are dedicated to thoroughly investigating all aspects of theatre. As a result of earning your BA/BS degree at UWSP, you'll find yourself prepared to gain admission to prestigious graduate programs around the nation. Graduates from our BA/BS program have gone on to work in nationally recognized theatres, film studios, universities, and production houses as stage managers, artistic directors, playwrights, and teachers.

Joan Karlen, Program Coordinator
jkarlen@uwsp.edu
(715) 346-3982

JOAN KARLEN

Joan Karlen, Dance Program Coordinator and Professor of Dance, teaches ballet and jazz, composition, camera dance and digital video editing. She has performed throughout the U.S. and as a principle dancer with Nucleodanza, Buenos Aires, Argentina. Joan presented her dance and multimedia work in Germany, the U.K., Portugal, Egypt, Canada, and Argentina. She earned dance degrees from The Juilliard School and New York University. Her teaching has been recognized with UWSP's Leadership Mentor Award, Teaching Excellence Award, the Who's Who Among American Teachers Award, and the UW-System Teaching Scholar Award.

DANCE FACULTY

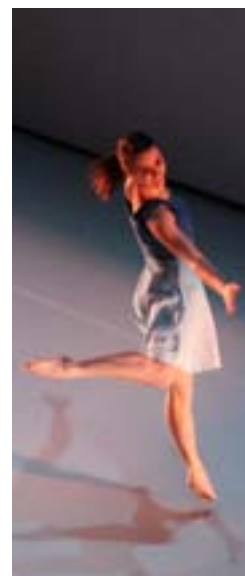

Jeannie Hill, Assistant Professor of Dance, teaches tap, jazz, composition and theatre dance in addition to choreographing for Danstage and the fall musical. She has enjoyed a varied international performing and teaching career and continues her affiliation with Chicago's Jump Rhythm Jazz Project as an artistic advisor, choreographer, and guest performer. She holds a BA in theatre from the University of Vermont and an MFA in dance from the University of Wisconsin—Milwaukee, Peck School of the Arts. Jeannie founded Point Tap Festival in 2010, a three-day summer workshop that brings tap dancers together from across the country.

Michael Estanich, Assistant Professor of Dance, teaches modern dance, composition, dance pedagogy, movement analysis, and dance history. Michael earned his MFA from The Ohio State University and his BFA from Denison University. His creative research currently examines ideas of space, architecture, landscape, and habitation often resulting in dances supported by sculptural environments. Michael's performance credits include Molly Shanahan/Mad Shak, Cerulean Dance Theatre, Rebecca Rosen, Melanie Bales, Bebe Miller, and a reconstruction of Mark Morris' acclaimed choreography All Fours. He has been a guest artist at various colleges and universities around the country. He teaches annually at the American Colleges Dance Festival (ACDF) and chairs the summer dance program at the Trollwood Performing Arts School in Moorhead, MN. In 2009, Michael and artistic partner Lucy Riner formed RE|Dance Group as a means to explore long-distance collaboration. He is the North Central Regional Director of ACDF.

Pamela Luedtke, Lecturer, teaches ballet and modern dance technique. For nine years, she was a soloist for the Mary Anthony Dance Theatre in New York City. In addition to her modern dance training in the techniques of Martha Graham and Hanya Holm, she is certified in Educational Kinesiology (Brain Gym). Her choreography has been performed in New York, Washington D.C., California, and Wisconsin. Pamela is also founder and director of the Point Dance Ensemble.

John Strassburg provides accompaniment for ballet, tap, and modern classes using piano, percussion, and electronic instrumentation. As a composer, he arranges and records music for students, faculty, and regional dance companies. John teaches piano to students of all ages in a private studio, plays solo gigs for special events, and participates as a keyboardist in Central Wisconsin area bands.

ALUMNI UPDATES

Gerald Avery (2008) I'm currently performing in Spider-Man, Turn Off the Dark, at the Foxwoods Theatre on Broadway in New York City, playing the roles of an evil villain made of mutant bees, "Swarm," a demanding ensemble track, and understudying the principle acting role "Jimmy-6". When not performing Spider-Man, I take dance class at Steps on Broadway and Broadway Dance Center, volunteer at my local Boys and Girls Club, and continue to audition for future projects.

There were many lessons that were taught to me during my time as a student at UWSP that prepared me for the professional field of Dance. One important area that UWSP focused on, that has been making a large impact on my life, is how to take care of my body and how to train properly. The professors at UWSP taught me how to understand and listen to my body. It is my instrument and it deserves my attention and time. The schedule for a Broadway show is demanding. With the focus and organization that was emphasized at UWSP, I can attack and execute the movement on a regular basis in the show without injury or body aches. My daily routine is based on sensory work and visualization, Pilates, and the clear knowledge of how to train properly.

Amy Larson (2010) I recently graduated from the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point and am constantly reminded of the ways my education and training at UWSP have brought me to where I am today. I have never been so grateful for my liberal arts education and the ways it provides me with the resources to succeed in multiple areas in the dance field.

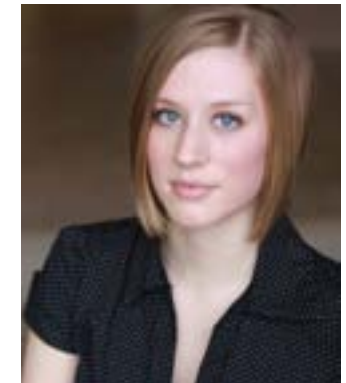

Being a part of the dance program at UWSP not only prepared me to be a dancer—my training prepared me to be a global artist. I was ready and skilled enough to immerse myself in New York's enormous, flourishing dance community without getting lost. While the technical dance training I received was exemplary and has opened many doors, it was the range of opportunities I was given beyond honing my technique that has helped me to succeed. Also, I cannot speak highly enough about the faculty in the dance program. They pushed me to think outside of my boundaries and held high demands in terms of quality of work and time management, which are things that I have definitely taken with me into my post-graduate life. The dance faculty provided me with the information and skills I needed to move on from UWSP's intense four-year curriculum while still being in a state of mind that is ready to learn and always ready to do more.

Sara Tan (2010) I vividly recall the fear of what was to come, or not to come, upon graduation from the UWSP program's safe haven—a place created to comfortably house and nurture our individual talents and aspirations. Now I find myself in Brussels, Belgium, attending another school and training much more rigorously than I thought possible. At PARTS (Performing Arts Research and Training Studios), I am learning to discover new facets of myself, through the workshops provided. The UWSP dance program and its entire faculty have truly fostered in me a strong work ethic that I believe will stay with me for many years. To be so immersed in the work that we do as dancers and to remain focused and motivated on the task at hand is a quality that was very present in the faculty members themselves and served as exemplary behavior for students to emulate. On top of that, the efficient use of and care for our instrument – the body – was also very valuable information that was really drilled into not just our brains, but seeped into our very lifestyles as well. The relationships that developed during my time at Stevens Point mostly came about through the ways we were always encouraged towards collaboration with one another and the learning from one another. I have no doubt in my mind that the foundation that was built in me during my four years at UWSP does and will continue to help me as I carry on evolving and maturing as an artist.

SENIOR SHOWCASE IN NEW YORK CITY

As an actor in the BFA Acting or BFA Musical Theatre Program at UWSP, you will have the opportunity to participate in a newly created “Senior Showcase” in the heart of New York City. The Showcase provides a real world experience where graduating seniors travel to New York City to audition and perform for select casting directors and agents in theatre, television, and film.

The Showcase is a semester-long course taught by Tim Howard (coordinator of the Musical Theatre program) and Tyler Marchant (Acting/Directing) who have both worked professionally in New York for many years. They use their expertise to prepare you to perform audition material for working professionals in individual appointments over several days in New York.

You will have a chance to walk the streets of the entertainment capital of the world and get hands-on advice about finding auditions, preparing appropriate material, unions, taxes, and how to build your acting career. This opportunity has been created to help you segue from your university education to the world of the working professional actor. You will not only have a chance to audition, but you will also receive feedback and advice about the “business” from leading agents and casting directors.

The Senior Showcase is a unique and powerful experience for our graduates. You will be given the tools and knowledge necessary to prevent you from feeling lost amid the immense challenge of starting your career. This opportunity is tailor-made to make this difficult process seem possible and help spread the word of the talent that UWSP is cultivating.

PLAYERS

Players is a student-run theatre organization designed to foster interest in social and performance activities at the University of Wisconsin - Stevens Point. This 40-year-old organization produces student-directed and designed productions annually while coordinating other events (such as theatre trips and workshops) that will broaden your knowledge of theatre and dance. Players welcomes people of all interests: actors, technicians, designers, directors, and dancers. The organization actively solicits new plays and performance pieces from the UWSP student body. If you are an aspiring playwright, you might see your work staged for the first time by Players. Whatever your theatrical interests, Players has a place for you.

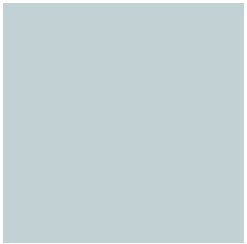

UWSP INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

UWSP offers more than 10 semester-long programs and over 20 short-term study tours over the winterim and both the spring and summer breaks. The variety of programs makes it possible to serve most of the students who are interested in studying abroad.

THEATRE IN LONDON, a summer trip through the Department of Theatre & Dance, is an exciting opportunity to enjoy plays in the theatre capitol of the world. You'll see plays, hear British guest lecturers, and enjoy visits to the major theaters.

Weekends will be free for your own travel plans. You might venture to Scotland, Stratford-Upon-Avon, Bath, St. Alban's, the English Lake District, or even to Paris.

HOW TO AUDITION FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF THEATRE & DANCE

Part of the unique character of the Theatre & Dance programs at UWSP is the audition/ interview admission requirement. Once you are accepted to the university, you are invited to join one of the programs based on an audition and/or interview and portfolio showing. This means that once you are invited to join a specific program, you will be learning, working, and performing alongside an incredibly talented array of fellow students. Accepting a limited number of new students each year enables the department to offer small class sizes with individual attention available to you. Each program within the department has its own particular application process. Listed below are the broad outlines of what you can expect when you seek admission to these outstanding programs. You have the option of auditioning for more than one program. Up-to-date information is available on our department Web site: www.uwsp.edu/theatre-dance

ACTING, BFA

Requirements

- Submit to the department an application form, resumé of theatre experience, two letters of recommendation, a photo (at least 4" by 6"), and a two- to three-page essay on your reasons for majoring in theatre.
- Perform an audition consisting of two contemporary monologues (one comic, one serious), age-appropriate, with a total time not to exceed three minutes.
- Interview with the BFA acting faculty.

MUSICAL THEATRE, BFA

Requirements

- Submit to the department an application form, resumé of theatre experience, two letters of recommendation, a photo (at least 4" by 6"), and a two- to three-page essay on your reasons for majoring in musical theatre.
- Perform two prepared songs from contemporary musicals: one ballad and one up-tempo number, approximately one minute of each song. Songs should be appropriate for your vocal range and personality. An accompanist will be provided or you can bring your own (recorded accompaniment is discouraged).
- Perform one prepared monologue from a contemporary realistic play – either comedic or dramatic. Section should reveal your personality and character type.
- NOTE: The entire audition (songs and monologue) must not exceed 4 minutes (you will be timed).
- Participate in a group dance audition. Wear clothes in which you can move freely. Tap shoes are not required. (A time to change from prepared audition dress will be provided).

Tony Nominee
Melissa Hart

DANCE, BA/BS AND MINOR

- What do you think you can contribute to theatre/dance?
- What challenges do you expect to face in your study of theatre/dance?
- What inspires you?
- What do you want to learn through this work?

THE INTERVIEW

Interview Topics:

- What are you looking for in a theatre or dance program?
- What is it that attracts you to UWSP's programs?
- Which role, performance, or production opportunity have you most enjoyed?
- In addition to theatre and dance, what are your creative interests?
- In addition to theatre and dance, what are your academic interests?
- What would you like to do with your training when you graduate?

You should also be prepared with any questions you have about the program.

Our college mission is to provide a community in which we inspire, create, and achieve. This community is centered on our students, who come first in our decision-making process.

"I credit much of my sense of professionalism, work ethic, and overall sense of self to my experience at UWSP, which instilled in me that theatre (and life in general) is a collaborative endeavor that requires dedication, hard work, and trust. UWSP also allowed me to be, as well as become, the person I truly am. I think it's all of this that automatically gives me a leg up going into an audition or job."

Email to Gary Olsen
from Ali Gilbertson (BFA, Acting, 2008)

Dear Gary,

Jake Paque (BFA, Acting 2006) and I opened PHEDRE last weekend. One night during our last week of rehearsal our director was panicking with some things...when I got there she was struggling with covering a couch. I said, "Here, let me do that. You got a staple gun?" So I covered it.

Then we were about to get started with the run and I overheard the director say, "Jake does, I bet Ali does too...Hey Ali! You have fight experience?"

"Ah, yeah, I do."

"Like, you know what you're doing?"

"Yeah, I was a teacher's assistant and fight captain for a show..."

"Awesome. Want to be our fight captain and run a fight call every night?"

Then later that night I was on stage and overheard the director say, "I bet Ali knows how... Hey Ali! Can you do stage makeup?"

"Ah, yeah."

"Like, you're pretty good at it?"

"Took a class...I'm actually very good at it. I love it."

"Awesome. Would you do old age on Kym and Collin every night?"

"Sure!"

She then exclaimed, "Ah! I LOVE these WISCONSIN kids!!"

Thank you,
Ali Gilbertson

ON TOUR

The Department of Theatre & Dance toured a production to the Grand Theatre in Wausau for the first time in January 2011. Soldiers Circle is the story of a contemporary band of brothers and sisters fighting in Afghanistan and is based on memoirs, blogs, and interviews from actual veterans of the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan. Area veterans brought their boots to display in the lobby accompanied by descriptions of their experiences in the service. The performance received a standing ovation and UWSP has been invited to return with another production to this beautiful and historic venue.

Andy Broomell

Maggie Raymond

Scott Frost

Soldiers Circle was also entered in the Kennedy Center American College Theatre Festival. In January 2011, the production's actors, designers and stage manager traveled to Lansing, Michigan, to compete in the regional festival. Andy Broomell, the set designer, received an honorable mention (second place) as did stage manager Scott Frost. Maggie Raymond, who competed in the Irene Ryan Acting Scholarship category, was one of two actors chosen out of 380 candidates from five states to continue on to the finals in Washington, D.C. She performed at the Kennedy Center in April 2011, and won a $5,000 scholarship from the prestigious Actor's Theatre of Louisville.

The Inaugural Melvin R. Laird Exceptional Artist Award recognized Department of Theatre & Dance BFA Design & Technology major Andy Broomell with a $5,000 grant providing an investment in his potential to become a successful leading artist in his field. During Andy's tenure at UWSP he designed numerous productions including: Sunday in the Park with George (Scenic Designer), Soldiers Circle (Scenic Designer), Rent (Scenic Designer), She Loves Me (UWSP – Properties Designer), What the Butler Saw (UWSP - Properties Designer), Ringtone (UWSP - Projections Designer), Hair (UWSP – Projections Designer), and Never the Sinner (UWSP - Projections Designer). Andy's portfolio can be found at www.andybroomell.com

John and Patty Noel have been long-time supporters of UWSP. Their one-million dollar contribution to the construction of the addition and renovation of the Noel Fine Arts Center helped make that project possible. They also support individual students with their Compass Scholars Scholarship.
"We started the Compass Scholars Scholarship program 10 years ago and now have 20 graduates and 10 students currently in the program. David Murray is one of our Compass Scholars. We are so proud of him and how he has grown and developed his theatre/music skills since coming to UWSP. These kids have truly become part of our lives and we are thankful to them for allowing us into their lives. We have true win-win relationships with all of our involvement with the kids at UWSP."

John Noel

THANK YOU!

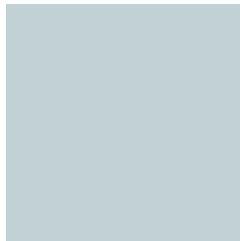

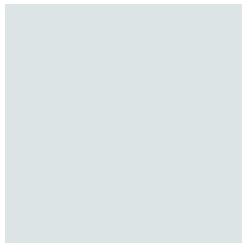

Thank you to all of the generous individuals and organizations that support the efforts of the next generation of theatre and dance artists. The contributions of alumni, community members, and current and past faculty combine to give current students a helping hand.
