Introduction to Global Affairs
Monday, Wednesday, Friday 12:00-12:50 PM, SCI B328

Professor Jennifer N. Collins, Ph.D.

E-mail: Jennifer.Collins@uwsp.edu

Office: SCI D339

Student Hours: Tuesdays 12-1 PM & Fridays 2-3 PM, and by appointment

Course Description

We live in a highly interdependent and globalized world. Our actions, the way we live our lives, and the political choices we make in the United States have direct impacts on peoples around the world, and similarly we are impacted by events, actions, and choices made by people in distant lands. Many of the most significant issues facing the world today, from global warming to terrorism to the economy, cannot be addressed separate from other countries and peoples. Given the nature of the world we live in, it is imperative that we as citizens develop a curiosity about the international arena and a solid understanding of how global politics functions. That is the broad aim of this course.

This course will introduce students to the main actors in global politics, including both state and non-state actors. Students will become familiar with the major theoretical approaches used by scholars of international relations to explain the likelihood of conflict and cooperation in the international system. The roles played by international and regional institutions including the United Nations and the European Union will be analyzed. Finally, we will study several timely and important issues in global affairs, including nuclear proliferation, human rights, global trade, and the environment.

POLI 180 is an introductory course for political science and international studies majors and minors, as well as for students pursuing the International Relations certificate. It also counts for the Critical Thinking GEP requirement, and we will be doing much concentrated work on analyzing, evaluating, and making arguments. Whatever your major or minor, this course should be valuable, as it aims to equip you with knowledge and tools that will help you to make sense of our world and the global forces that shape our lives, as well as develop your critical thinking skills.

Specific Course Learning Outcomes

After successful completion of this course students will:

- 1) Be able to identify key global actors and institutions and explain their role in global affairs.
- 2) Be able to describe key concepts and patterns that characterize global politics.
- 3) Be able to explain major theoretical paradigms, including realism and liberalism, developed by international relations scholars, and identify which paradigm undergirds specific proposals and positions taken by politicians and other important actors.
- 4) Have developed a greater interest in and improved ability to follow coverage of international events and issues.
- 5) Have developed their capacity to see the complexity that characterizes contemporary global issues and to respect divergent positions and perspectives.

General Education Learning Outcomes

In addition to the course specific and content outcomes listed above, this course also aims to meet the learning outcomes associated with the Critical Thinking GEP.

“Critical Thinking is an essential part of a liberal education. Learning to think critically requires looking beyond the knowledge claims that characterize a subject to appreciate the justifications that are given for those knowledge claims. Critical Thinking courses taken early in a student’s college career help students develop a skill set that they will use throughout their college career, and beyond.

Upon completing this course, you will be able to:

1. Recognize critical thinking as a process of identifying, analyzing, evaluating, and constructing reasoning in deciding what conclusions to draw (argumentation) or actions to take (decision-making and problem-solving).
2. Identify, analyze, evaluate, and construct reasoning as it is applied to general or discipline-specific questions or issues.
3. Communicate the analysis, evaluation, or construction of reasoning orally, visually, or in writing.”

Required Text and e-Reserves

- Steven L. Lamy, John S. Masker, John Baylis, Steve Smith, and Patricia Owens. Introduction to Global Politics, Sixth Edition, Oxford University Press, 2021. (Available through Text Rental)
NOTE: From here on referred to as “Lamy et al.”

The textbook offers students free access to numerous ancillary study materials. You should find instructions for accessing these materials inside the front cover of your textbook. I encourage you to explore these study aids as we work through the textbook.

- Additional readings beyond the textbook are listed below in the Course Schedule. Electronic links to these materials will become available in Canvas. If you encounter problems accessing any of these materials, please let me know ASAP.

Course Requirements and Grading

Your grade will be based on your performance in the following areas:

Attendance & Participation	14%
Brief Homework Assignments (3)	9%
Critical Thinking Lesson and Quiz (1)	2%
Current Events Presentation	2%
Reflection Paper (1)	10%
Argumentative Paper (1)	25%
Midterm Exam	18%
Final Exam	20%
TOTAL	100%

Grading Scale

Course grades will be calculated on a straight percentage scale. An A equals 93 or above, A- 90-92.99, B+ 87-89.99, B 83-86.99, B- 80-82.99, C+ 77-79.99, C 73-76.99, C- 70-72.99, D+ 67-69.99, D 60-66.99, F 59.99 and below.

Course Format: Given that this is an introductory class, a good chunk of class time will be devoted to lecture. However, there will also be many opportunities for discussion and student participation. I welcome your questions and comments at any time during class. Likewise, most weeks there will be one class set aside to discuss and debate a specific topic or issue. It is important that you come prepared to actively participate in these discussions. Readings are detailed on the syllabus and should be completed before coming to class. I design my lectures to build on and complement the reading, so your retention and comprehension of lectures and the benefit you get from discussion will be greatly enhanced if you come to class having done the reading. Sometimes we will use the textbook for in-class exercises. Please get into the habit of bringing your textbook with you to class. If you feel like you are having trouble in this class, please come and see me.

Attendance and Participation: Students are expected to attend all class sessions and come prepared to discuss the assigned materials. Regular attendance and participation are essential for success in this class and will count for 14% of your grade. Students will be allowed two unexcused absences without penalty, but more than 2 unexcused absences will result in a lowering of your attendance and participation grade, and more than 9 unexcused absences (3 weeks) during the semester will result in a failing grade, possibly even forfeiture of any points for attendance and participation. In addition to regular attendance, active participation in class discussions is important. I will keep a record of student attendance and participation and will refer to it when I calculate this portion of your grade. Excused absences will not count towards these limits, but you should provide me with documentation, such as a doctor's note, if you request an excused absence. I will use Kahoot quizzes in class to review material, poll student opinion on a topic, and track attendance. Generally, the scores you get on these quizzes will not count as part of your grade. However, if I find that the class is not keeping up with the reading, I may start counting some of these as part of the attendance and participation grade.

Brief Homework Assignments: There are 4 brief homework assignments listed on the Class Schedule, which consist of answering questions based on the assigned reading for that day. Students are required to complete 3 of the 4 assignments. In other words, you can skip one of them with no penalty. Students who complete all four homework assignments will earn extra credit. These assignments must be turned in by the due date, that is before class on the day we will be talking about these topics. If you are unable to meet the deadline, then skip that one and complete the other three. Generally, I will not grade these assignments, instead students will earn points for completion. However, if the assignment is clearly unacceptable, then full points may not be awarded.

Reflection Paper: There is one short reflection paper due early in the semester. Detailed instructions are posted on Canvas. This is meant to be an informal piece of writing in which you reflect on the assigned topic in an exploratory way. This paper is worth 10% of your grade.

Argumentative Paper: The second short paper will consist of a more formal piece of argumentative writing. Here you will have two topics to choose from. This paper will require that you develop a persuasive argument using reasoning and evidence. I will provide the background readings that you are to use as the basis for this essay. This short paper (3-4 pages) will not require any outside research and will be worth 25% of your grade.

In-Class Debates: There are two scheduled in-class debates. I will ask for volunteers to come prepared to debate the topic for the day. These debates will be informal. Participation will count instead of a homework assignment. In other words, if a student participates in one of the debates, then they only must complete 2 of the 4 homework assignments. If a student has completed three homework assignments and participates in one of the debates, they will receive extra credit points.

Exams: There will be 2 exams, a midterm and a final. Both exams will be in-class and primarily consisting of multiple-choice questions. Exams will cover material from the readings, lecture, and class discussions. I will provide you with study guides at least one week before each exam.

Communications and Technology: This class has a Canvas page where I will make available various course materials, including the syllabus, assignments, links to e-Reserve readings, lecture PowerPoints, etc. This is also where you will upload all written assignments. I will also post announcements and reminders on Canvas for the whole class.

Current Events: In addition to the assigned readings, students are expected to keep up with world news by reading a major daily newspaper or news magazine (online or in print) with excellent coverage of international events. Recommended news sources include, the New York Times, Washington Post, Guardian, The Economist, Al Jazeera, and Speigel Online, among others. We will refer to relevant current events in class, so being conversant with what is going on in the world will further your ability to contribute to class discussions and improve your performance on exams. I encourage you to think and talk about with your peers how current events relate to the theories, frames, and tools we are learning in class and how these tools help to make sense of developments taking place in our world.

To assist us as a class in keeping up with what is going on in the world, each student will sign up to make a brief (3-5 min.) presentation at the start of class on an article of interest related to global affairs. Current event presentations will not be graded; so long as you complete the assignment, you will earn full credit. This presentation counts for 2% of your final grade. A sign-up sheet for current event presentations will be made available on Canvas by Week 2. Make sure to sign up!

Another recommended source for news is National Public Radio (NPR); their news programs are excellent and will keep you up to date on current events and important issues, both domestic and international. You can hear NPR news on Wisconsin Public Radio, which has two local radio stations: the Ideas Network and News and Classical. You can also listen live and access podcasts of previous shows at www.wpr.org. Podcasts are another terrific way to keep up with the news. One podcast that I recommend for delving deeper into top news stories is “The Daily,” which is produced by the New York Times and available for free on Apple Podcasts and other platforms.

Academic Integrity: All students are expected to abide by the guidelines for academic integrity contained in the UW System Administrative Code. As a student it behooves you to be well acquainted with these guidelines and to understand what constitutes plagiarism, as violations can result in severe consequences. For the purposes of this class, the basic rule is to do your own work on exams and written assignments. I take cheating seriously and will act if an incident comes to my attention. Please let me know if you are aware of cheating taking place during exams. When you upload written assignments to Canvas they will be run through a plagiarism detection program, Turnitin.com. Do NOT cut and paste or copy from someone else!!! That is plagiarism. If I discover you have plagiarized something, at a minimum, you will receive a zero for that assignment.

Classroom Etiquette

- Please mute your cell phone and refrain from texting or surfing the web while in class. The only time you should be using your cell phone in class is when we are using Kahoot.
- Refrain from eating in class; drinks are permissible.
- Arriving late or leaving during class is disruptive. Please make every effort to be on time. If you know in advance that you will have to step out early, please let me know before class begins.
