Course Description:

History 176 examines the development of America and United States from European Colonies to post-Civil War Reconstruction. Focusing on six eras: Colonial America, the American Revolution, the Early Republic, the Age of Jackson, Antebellum America, and the Civil War Era, students will build an understanding of complex diversity among people, major themes, and the development of political, social, economic, and culture in the fledging United States. By the completion of this survey course students will gain a new perspective on American History, gain knowledge and skills for a successful college career.

Course Objectives:

The primary object is to develop the skills necessary to interpret and analyze sources and information that depict historical events in the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries in North America.

- Students will demonstrate an understanding of key developments in American history since 1877 emphasis on the complexity of relationship between peoples, foundation of the European colonies in North America, the growing divide between the colonies and Great Britain and subsequential split, established the United States, the political, economic, and social impact of U.S. expansion, the causes, and consequences of the Civil War.
- Recognize and analyze a selection of historical documents to determine trustworthiness, authenticity, and bias.
- Evaluate how historians use sources (primary and secondary) to develop their own interpretations of historical events.
- Develop, interpret, and evaluate historical arguments formed from readings.
- Improve critical thinking and written skills through engagement with early American history.

EXCEPTIONAL NEEDS POLICY:

We are dedicated to accommodating the needs of our students. Equal treatment is not the same as equitable (fair) treatment. Therefore, a course requirement like a deadline may be unfair to you, based on a life event or a disability. If we agree that the requirement is unfair, then we are happy to make an accommodation. Here are some exceptional needs we have accommodated in the past: learning disability, physical disability, chronic illness, death in the family, car accident, sick child.

When reporting a life event or other exceptional need, please suggest the specific accommodation(s) you want (e.g., turning in an assignment late without a penalty, taking an Incomplete in this course, etc.).

We align our policies and choices with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), a federal law that requires educational institutions to provide reasonable accommodations for students with disabilities. Here is more information about UWSP's relevant policies . If you have a disability and want an accommodation, please register with the Disability Services and Assistive Technology Office located on the Steven's Point campus.
