Course Objectives/Learning Outcomes:

"History as a discipline is not a collection of dates and events. It is an investigation of political, social, and cultural tensions, transitions, and developments in the past. Historians construct narratives about the past based on archaeological and historical sources that require careful critical analysis. They must avoid modern biases or assumptions when reading and interpreting historical evidence (primary sources)."

–Dr. Camarin Porter
UWSP

At the end of this course, the student will have improved and/or mastered his/her ability to:

- 1) conduct research in order to find and synthesize factual and theoretical materials of classical antiquity and medieval theatre practice in an expository research paper;
- 2) articulate verbally the differences and similarities among the above periods of theatre history using assigned play scripts as well as readings on theatre architecture, acting, scenic design, and criticism (both contemporary and classical accounts);
- 3) explain the influence of classical theatre practice (stages, acting, organization) on the contemporary theatre;
- 4) classify and evaluate the legitimacy of types of evidence in the study of theatre history;
- 5) identify the artistic, philosophic, religious, and sociological bases of theatre production;
- 6) formulate incisive questions in the study of theatre history; and
- 7) EXPRESS EACH OF THE ABOVE IN EFFECTIVE WRITING.

GEP PROGRAM OUTCOMES:

The General Education Program (GEP) seeks to develop these qualities of global citizenship in four distinct ways. After completing the general education curriculum, students will:

- Demonstrate critical thinking, quantitative, and communication skills necessary to succeed in a rapidly changing global society.

- Demonstrate broad knowledge of the physical, social, and cultural worlds as well as the methods by which this knowledge is produced.
- Recognize that responsible global citizenship involves personal accountability, social equity, and environmental sustainability.
- Apply their knowledge and skills, working in interdisciplinary ways to solve problems.

Style of Teaching: Lecture. Handouts should be placed in a folder or notebook (the one you use to keep notes). You will not find notes, outlines, or any assignments on D2L. If a change in the syllabus occurs, you will be notified via your university email. Check your university email at least twice daily. ALWAYS check your email at least two hours prior to class. If I place an item on reserve in the library OR send you a link via email, you are responsible for the material on the appropriate exam and/or final. Do not use cellphones in class to take photos of the screen. RAISE YOUR HAND if you have a comment. You are not at home, but rather in a classroom.

Exams: Four exams will incorporate identification and/or matching and or true/false and/or short answer and/or essay questions. Be prepared to acknowledge the importance of timelines. Exams are never “made up” by an absent student unless approved by me prior to the absence.

Term Paper: One seven-page paper (including works cited page) required. Due dates for outline, draft, and final paper in syllabus. A paper given to me after the due date will receive half credit only; therefore, if a paper is worth 100 points and is turned in late, the maximum number of points you will receive is 50. The final version of your term paper must be perfect—no spelling, grammatical, pagination, or formatting errors. All students must follow MLA or Chicago style sheet—no APA. PLEASE SEE: MLA Handbook (any edition—the most current edition is the 8th) or the Chicago Manual of Style in the library or online. I will distribute paper guidelines the second week of class.

Writing Guides to Consult (if needed):

<http://www.usu.edu/markdamen/WritingGuide/00intro.htm>

<https://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/679/01/>

<https://style.mla.org/formatting-papers/>

The top link is a reputable “writing guide” from Utah State University dealing with writing for history classes. The bottom link—Purdue’s “OWL”—contains many links to such style guidebooks as Strunk and White’s classic The Elements of Style. You should also consult the grammar and usage book you purchased for ENGL 101 or 150: Rules for Writers.

Grading: Each exam is worth 100 points. The paper is worth 200 points. There are 600 points possible. 540-600 = A/A-; 480-539 = B/B+/B-; 420-479 = C/C+/C-; 360-419 = D/D+/D-; 0-359 = F. UWSP uses + (plus) and – (minus) marks; therefore, within each 60 point range, final letter grades will include a “+” marking for the top third, no marking for the middle third, and a – (minus) marking for the bottom third. Example: 380 points total = D; 490 points total = B-; 545 points total = A-. Grades of A+ and F+ do not exist on this scale; therefore, if you receive 599 points, for example, you will receive an “A” for the course, not an “A+”.

PLEASE NOTE: Raise your hand if you must leave the class. I will then excuse you.

Please bring your textbook to class along with paper and a writing utensil. If you must use a laptop, remember that PC screens may distract students who sit behind you. The screen must be turned off or closed when a video or DVD is shown. Do not check email or conduct irrelevant searches while I am speaking. Text on the down low.

Attendance: It is your responsibility to attend class. You may miss two class sessions with no penalty. The following scale applies: 1-2 absences, no penalty; 3 or more unexcused absences is a letter grade drop for the course, i.e., after I calculate your point total at the end of the term. If you earn a total of 490 points after all grades have been tabulated, but have 4 or more absences, the “B-” your point total indicates will be dropped to a “C-”. Six or more absences (the equivalent of three weeks or more) suggests that you should reassess your decision to pursue a college degree. Be prepared to discuss plays on the due dates or you will be counted absent. I will assign each of you a play or topic or historical figure and you will be expected to discuss in class.

Plagiarism: “Plagiarism” is defined as using undocumented source material as your own thought (i.e., not giving credit to a source) as well as any form of “cheating.” If I suspect plagiarism, you will receive zero points for that assignment and be referred to your advisor and/or academic dean to begin the review process. This is the first step toward disciplinary action that may result in expulsion from the university.

Disability Services: Located in Rm. 609 in the library, Ph. 346-3365. Students may document a disability and request auxiliary aids from this office.

Classroom Security: See UWSP Risk Management Department's website.
